BRINGING THE PAST TO LIGHT

Knowlton & Badders, LLC: "When it comes to remodeling, homeowners want to open their living spaces and use rich architectural detail to add charm. The warmth of hand-planed millwork, plaster, and wide-plank floors are increasingly coveted as essential. Homeowners want the character and custom detailing of the past to infuse the space and light of today."

THE TEST OF TIME

Hovatt Tucker Architects, LLC: "The influx of new technology is changing a lot of what goes into today's houses, but it hasn't changed what most people want from their house. People want a home that is comfortable and livable with a little bit of elegance and classic, timeless detailing. The trick is to marry the technology into the design so that when it is all done you feel like you are in a house that has already stood the test of time."

OLD STYLE HOMES

Turnkey Associates: "Old style features and qualities are what people are looking for. They want to have all-new construction and amenities with all the style and charm of yesteryear, a new house that looks and feels 100 years old."

DRAWING CONCLUSIONS The Red Sox Studio:

"Drawing has always been a fundamental and ever-present companion throughout our history, and it is an art form that has been used in home decorating for centuries. It has become increasingly evident that the ability to manipulate computer software has overshadowed the all-important and very critical ability to draw by hand. Although the computer certainly has its place in art, it isn't nor should it ever be a substitute, but rather a complement to the creative process. Drawing will always be an irreplaceable and critical element in the communication of thought, vision and creative passion."
